I. TITLE: Legal and Ethical Issues

II. COURSE DESCRIPTION AND PREREQUISITE(S):
This course will present the legal and ethical ramifications that being a counselor in today's complex society demands. An in-depth examination of current contemporary issues will highlight the course.

Prerequisite(s): none

III. COURSE OBJECTIVES:
Class activities will be centered on the attainment of the course objectives listed below. Following each objective, and enclosed in parentheses, are numbers that reference the Council for Accreditation of Counseling & Related Education Programs (CACREP) Standards addressed by that objective.

Upon successful completion of this class, students will be able to:

A. know what it means to be an ethical professional counselor (Section II G.1.b, G 1.c);
B. be aware and understand the implications of many of the ethical, legal, and professional issues currently involved in the counseling profession (Section III CHMC: C9);
C. be familiar with the American Counseling Associations (ACA) Code of Ethics (Section II: G1.j).
D. be familiar with ethical issues related to counseling certification and licensure requirements (Section II: G.1.g);
E. be aware of ethical practices for working in a multicultural society (Section II G.2.a; Section III CHMC: D5; Section III School: E1);
F. be aware of counselor biases, personal culture, beliefs and fears as they relate to ethics in professional counseling (Section II: G.2.a; Section III CMHC: D9; Section III School: E1);
G. become aware of significant legal issues/cases relevant to counseling (Section III CMHC: C9);
H. be aware of ethical issues specific to mental health agencies and school settings (Section II: G.1.j.; Section III CMHC: A2; Section III School: A2);
I. be aware of the ethical issues related to counselor self-care and impairment (Section II G.1.d; Section III CHMC: D9);
J. know and understand relevant ethical decision making models (Section III CHMC: B2; Section III School: B1);
K. demonstrate the ability to understand and use the ACA Code of ethics to make an ethical decision (Section III CMHC: B1; Section III School: B1);
L. demonstrate the ability to use a specific ethical decision making model (Section III CMHC: B2); and
M. use Research effectively to inform evidence-based practice (Section II: G.8.e.).

The CAEP/EPSB theme of diversity will be addressed through discussions and assignments that promote ethical counseling interactions within a multicultural framework. Students will engage in self-reflective learning activities that promote self-awareness and understanding of how one’s own attitudes, values, biases, and judgments impact the counseling relationship.

The CAEP/EPSB theme of literacy/reading will be addressed as students read and analyze text readings, journal articles, and case studies as they learn how to apply the ethical codes and standards of practice to various counseling settings. Written and verbal communication will be promoted as students learn how to identify ethical issues, choose an appropriate ethical decision making model to address and resolve the ethical issues, consult with other professionals to obtain objectivity surrounding the ethical issues, and document how and why choices were made while resolving the ethical issues.

The CAEP/EPSB theme of assessment is addressed in this course via text readings and threaded discussions on the ethical, professional, and responsible use of assessment instruments in counseling settings.

Finally, the CAEP/EPSB theme of technology is addressed through reading assignments and class discussions that promote critical thinking and reflection pertaining to the ethical use of technology in the counseling field. Students will learn how to identify and resolve counseling related issues pertaining to social media, emails, electronic records, and technology-assisted distance counseling.

VIII. EVALUATION AND GRADING PROCEDURES:
A. Course Requirements:
Evaluation and grade will be determined by tests and assignments based on texts, supplementary readings in professional journals, lectures, group activities, and class discussion.

Grading Scale:
A = 90-100%
B = 80-89%
C = 71-79%
E = Below 71%

1. Ethics Course Overview DVD and Workbook Reflection Assignment  30 points
   a. Students will watch the entire Ethics in Action DVD; and
   b. Complete the corresponding Workbook for Ethics in Action (3rd ed.); and
   c. Submit completed workbook “worksheet” pages via Canvas (worksheet pages should be scanned in and uploaded to Canvas). Although students will be expected to complete the entire workbook, only select “worksheet” pages will be asked for from all three sections of the book. Options for the pages to be turned in will be identified and discussed in Canvas.

2. Combined Disclosure Statement/Informed Consent Form Assignment (15 points total).  (Due July 16th at 10 am).
   Using the ethical codes and the standards of practice relevant to the setting (and state) and where you will be doing your practicum or internship, (and if you are past your practicum and internship phase of the program, where you will be working when you graduate):
   a. Write a checklist of the items to include in a combined disclosure statement/informed consent form that is based off the counseling profession’s standards of practice, the state laws, and ethical codes.
      1) Be intentional with what is on your checklist.
      2) For purposes of the checklist, next to each item, indicate why that item is being included on your checklist (e.g., Did it come from a specific ethical code (list the code and relevant section of the code)? Did you read it off a professional association website (identify what website)? Was there a state statute that said that item should be included in an informed consent form (include the state statute number and website link for that statute)? Is this a standard practice item to include in a combined disclosure statement/informed consent form? Share how you know it is a standard practice item (maybe the book shared this info)?
      3) This checklist can be used to create your disclosure/informed consent form or if you have one already – use it as a guide to see if you have all the items needed on your form (it is easy to forget something on your form).

3. Ethical Issues in Pop Culture Assignment - Paper and Presentation (30 points)
   In this assignment you will explore how to identify and work through ethical issues in a fun and creative way. This assignment will consist of three parts:
a. Select and watch a movie from the list below where one of the main characters is a counselor, psychologist, therapist, or other mental health or counseling professional. Each movie will only have one student assigned to it. You are welcome to choose different movie not listed below, as long as the movie has a significant enough client/counselor or helping professional interaction (0 points).

b. Write a 6-10 page paper identifying and exploring the following (20 points):
1) The ethical dilemma(s) at hand;
2) Relevant ethical codes;
3) Standards of practice;
4) Court rulings/appeals relating to the dilemma(s) in the movie;
5) Ethical considerations;
6) Ethical/legal ramifications;
7) An ethical decision making model that could have helped the character become more aware of the dilemma(s);
8) How you, the counselor (if you were in that role), would use this ethical decision making model to work through the dilemma(s) to make the best ethical decision(s) possible; and
9) As part of your paper, appropriately cite the relevant ethical codes and standards of practice and/or statutes and case law to support or define your position (including appropriate citations related to theory, techniques, special needs regulations, and multicultural research as applicable).

c. In addition to turning in your paper, you will also present your findings in a 5 - 7 minute video to be posted on Canvas so other students will be able to respond to your video post as part of one of our threaded discussions (10 points).

Due date information: Your paper is due July 27th at 10 am. The presentation will be our final video post of our threaded discussion for the semester (last full week of class). Please post your videos and responses to other’s videos posts between July 28th at 10 am and July 10th at 10 am. (Preferably upload your video by Weds. evening so as to give people time to view and respond to it by Saturday morning).

4. Reflection Papers (75 points total)
Five weekly reflection papers will be written throughout the course. There will be separate grading rubrics for each paper that can be found at the end of the syllabus. All papers can be written in first person. Outside of the first paper on Greatest Fears, and the third paper on Ethical Decision Making Models, these reflection papers are designed to be really informal (think of these papers like a cross between a journal entry and a personal essay). Please look through the rubrics before writing your papers for they will further assist you in what is needed to obtain full points on each paper below. Reflection Papers will be due each Monday at 10 am unless otherwise noted.

a. Greatest Fear Paper (25 points) (Due July 6th at 10 am) (Section II G.1.j, G.8.e; Section III CMHC: A2; Section III School)
Write a 3-4 page reflection paper identifying an ethical dilemma you fear the most. Divide your paper into two parts:

1) Introduce and discuss in detail why this issue in particular is more challenging and frightening for you to have to deal with than all the others;
2) Use research and proper citations of current research that address this issue in the literature to show that this is a legitimate ethical issue counselors face today (minimum of 3 sources).

b. Counselor Identity Reflection Paper (5 points) (Due July 13th at 10 am)
In this reflection paper (2-3 pages in length, double-spaced), write about what drew you to this profession, and what it means to you to be a counselor (or school counselor). No specific length is required for this paper and there is no need to use APA for this paper (unless you citing a source as part of your paper). As part of this paper, explore the following:

1) Keeping in mind your ideal work setting (e.g. private practice, agency, college counseling, school counseling, counselor education), what do you see as your role(s) as a counselor for that particular setting?
2) How are those roles different from other helping professionals (i.e. psychologists, school psychologists, social workers, etc.)?
3) Explore what the connection is between your professional and personal life. Particularly share your thoughts on who you are as a professional and if this has anything to do with who you are as a person away from work (or vice-versa).

Please note that no specific rubric will be used to grade this particular paper. If students’ meet page requirements, and thoughtfully answer each question demonstrating depth and insight, they will receive full credit (5 points). Otherwise, they students will receive 0 points.

c. Ethical Decision Making Models Reflection Paper (10 points) (Due July 20th at 10 am)
This reflection paper has three parts to it:

1) From the readings, class discussions, journal articles, and your own beliefs, identify three ethical decision making models that you resonate with.
   • Summarize these models and their corresponding steps (appropriately citing sources).
   • Explore how and when you might use these three models (e.g. In what kinds of situations could you picture these models working well for you? When and why might you use one model over another model)?
2) Reflect upon the three models you have chosen. Combine them/tweak them (add or take off something) to create 1 very personalized ethical decision making model that could work well in a wide variety of situations.
   • Identify and list the steps of your own personal model.
   • For each step in your model, give a short description of the step, the source for the step (another model, research, codes of ethics, etc.), and why you feel this step is important to you.
3) Create a simple table that summarizes the steps for each of the four models (i.e. the three previous models plus your own personalized model).

Note: There is no specific length to this particular paper or the table, as long as you sufficiently describe and back-up/support the information asked for. At the end of the semester, I recommend creating a file of all four models and the table you created and placing them where you will easily be able to draw upon them when needed.

There will be no specific rubric for this assignment. This assignment is all or nothing. Students will receive full credit, 10 points, if they: complete all questions asked for with depth and insight; properly cite their sources for their decision making models; create their own personalized ethical decision making model and respond to the questions asked about that; as well as create a table that adequately summarizes their decision making model. This particular assignment is a really important one. Students who fail to follow the grading criteria for this particular paper, will receive a 0 on their paper.

d. Values Self-Awareness Reflection Paper (10 points) (Due July 27th at 10 am)
In this reflection paper you will explore the relationship between your personal values and beliefs in your own life and how these relate to who you are as a person, and who you are as a professional.
This particular paper has two parts to it that will be explained below: 1) a hands-on self-directed experiential reflective activity; and 2) a written reflection of your experiences doing the activity and insights gained from the activity. No need to use APA for this paper unless you need to cite any sources. There is no length requirement but answers should be sufficient to provide the adequate information needed. Also note that there is not a wrong or right to this exercise.

1) Experiential self-exploration and awareness activity:

- Three different sets of values cards will be uploaded into canvas. Choose one of the three decks of cards to use for this assignment (or try all three if you would like). Download the deck of cards, print out on sheets of paper or cardstock, and cut along the lines to make into little cards. There are some blank cards on the last page of each of the three pages so you may write in and include additional values that you do not see on the original list of values (e.g. empathy, interdependence, self-awareness, self-care, courage, determination, faith, intuition, balance, integrity, critical thinking, competitiveness, nonjudgmental, harmony, friendly, community, doing what is right, decisive, persistence, unconditional positive regard, etc.).
- After cutting the cards, take the three cards that say “very important to me,” “important to me,” and “not important to me.” Place these three cards a foot a part on a table (or on the floor if you prefer to use the floor). Once the cards have been cut, the rest of the experiential part of the activity should take only 5-6 minutes to complete.
- Next, take each value card and place them under one of these three categories. Do this process quickly (in 3-4 minutes).
- After placing each of the cards in one of the three categories, then go through each category in two minutes or less, and organize the values from most important value at the top, to the least important at the bottom.

2) Write about the experience of the ease or challenges of clarifying your values and what matters to you most. As part of writing about the process and experience:

- Explore what it was like to reflect upon your values and identifying those that matter to you most.
- Reflect upon what it was like to visually see your values in the order they matter most to you.
- Explore how your three lists of values might have looked at different times in your life.
- Explore how your three lists of values might look if you based them off how you are in your professional life/at work versus how you are in your personal life. Note any differences or discrepancies, and why that might be.
- If you have ever had any clashes in values, how have you resolved this?

Note that this is an activity that can easily be used with clients. If you do that, I would create your own cards on cardstock, keep it simple, thin out the number of cards used, and use words/descriptions that are age appropriate, as well as developmentally appropriate. I would approach this particular exercise like you are doing a journal entry. This is a very personal activity so when you write, only share what you are comfortable sharing.

There is no particular rubric for this assignment since there is no wrong or right answer. Students who complete all parts of this assignment, and demonstrate depth and insight in their responses, will get full credit (10 points). Students who complete all three parts of the assignment but do not demonstrate depth and insight, or do not thoroughly respond to the questions, will only receive 5 points on their papers. Student who fail to put effort into the assignment and their responses, or do not complete all aspects of the paper, will receive 0 points for their paper.

e. What Have I Learned Reflection Paper (25 points) (Due Aug. 3rd at 10 am). (CACREP II. G.1.d., Section II G.1.j, G.8.e; Section III CMHC: A2; Section III School: A2). This paper has three parts to it, one that particularly addresses your greatest fear, one that relates to general knowledge and insights gained from taking this course as a whole, and one that pertains to the role of self-care and ethical practice. At the end of the semester you will write a 4-6 page informal reflection paper (no need to use APA format unless citing sources) that accomplishes the following:

1) In response to your greatest fear you have that was identified in your Greatest Fear Reflection Paper No. 1:
• Outline a plan of action that describes how you plan to address the situation you described as your “greatest fear.” Use a specific decision making model;
• If applicable to your situation identify steps you can take to avoid this situation from happening
• Conclude by summarizing what you learned about yourself, your values, and your fears by confronting this issue.

2) As you reflect back on the course as a whole - the various assignments, interactions with others in class, the threaded discussions, and text readings or other relevant readings:
• Identify the three biggest things that surprised you the most; and
• Identify three things from class that you picture being the most helpful for you as you move forward in your program and/or chosen profession (for being the most ethical responsible counselor possible).

3) Self-care is critical in the counseling field. For this final section of your paper:
• Describe what you have learned in this course pertaining to the connection between each of these areas: a) self-care and wellness; b) self-awareness and self-care, and c) self-care and ethical practice.
• Describe the role of self-awareness with good self-care and ethical practice, and identify three things you can do that will best help you engage in self-care while working with clients.

5. Self-Reflection, Class Participation, and Professionalism (50 points)
Self-reflection and self-examination are critical components of counselor development. Assessing one’s values, beliefs, and assumptions is part of becoming an ethical counselor. Students will be expects to engage in self-reflection and self-examination through the entire course. This process assists students with stretching, learning, and growing in new ways while you explore the important role ethics play in the counseling profession. As part of developing skills towards being an ethical counselor, students will also be expected to work on their own personal issues or other issues that could adversely impact their work with clients, or their growth and development as a counselor or counselor-in-training (CACREP Section III: G2, G5, G6).

A healthy exchange of ideas and feedback from each other can enrich the learning process. Because of that, active participation in class is essential. You will be expected to contribute to class discussions in a respectful way – both as an active listener, and as an active speaker. Although students will be expected to discuss their personal values and assumptions in class, students may also choose to share that which they are comfortable sharing. It is hoped that by sharing with each other, students will be able to engage in synergistic conversations that can help each other gain additional insights to the class concepts being discussed.

As a class we will work towards creating an environment of trust where difficult concepts can be discussed without individuals feeling judged or looked down upon. To help with this, students will be expected to be sensitive to how they give feedback to each other, and work on being assertive versus passive, aggressive, or passive-aggressive. Being assertive means students will speak up, but not hurt, poke, jab, blame, or demean each other in the process. Making insensitive, inappropriate, judgmental, or other hurtful comments, is not acceptable. Students are expected to be professional with how they interact with each other as well as with the instructor. Lack of professionalism could adversely affect your grade as well as adversely affect your standing the program.

6. Threaded Discussions – Video Discussions and Case Study Discussions (60 points total). (Section II G.1.b, G.1.j)
Weekly threaded discussions will take place throughout the course. Specific Instructions will be posted in Canvas. How the threaded discussions will work (general information and expectations): Threaded discussions start every Tuesday at 10 am and close every Saturday at 10 am. Students are expected to post a response to the original questions posted in Canvas by Wednesday night, then respond to two other posts of their choice sometime before Saturday morning.
• Threaded discussions will start July 7th and run for 4 weeks (ending on August 1st).
• The first full week of class and the last full week of class will be video threaded discussion responses that involve the entire class. The first and last week will be full class discussions.
• The second and third full weeks of class will be traditional written threaded discussions. For these two weeks students will be divided into groups of 4 - 6 students.
- Topics, discussion questions, and specific instructions for each week’s discussions will be posted in Canvas each week.
- Whether or not the threaded discussions are video discussions or written discussions, students will be expected to respond with quality comments that show intentionality, thought and depth.
- Grading for the threaded discussions will be based on participation and the number of responses (minimum three posts per week) and for the quality of the response (which must show intentionality, depth, and critical thinking and/or reasoning skills to get full credit). 15 points each week possible. (One grade will be given at the end of all the discussion posts that totals 60 points).
- No threaded discussions will take place the first week half week of class (July 1 – 5)... this will be hopefully allow you a little extra time to get oriented to class, ask questions, start the overview assignment, start reading the texts, etc.

7. Quizzes (100 points total)
Four quizzes worth 25 points each will be given each week via Canvas. These quizzes will relate to the text readings for that particular module of class and will be open book, timed quizzes (three hours, which should be plenty of time to answer all the questions with relative ease). Quizzes will open every Thursday at 2 pm and close every Saturday at 2 pm.

Extra Credit: An extra credit assignment option worth 10 points may be announced in Canvas. Look in Canvas for details.

IX. ATTENDANCE POLICY:
Students are expected to adhere to the MSU Attendance Policy outlined in the current MSU Bulletin.

Additionally, students are expected to be on time for class. Tardiness and/or missed classes can result in a drop in letter grade. Cell phones will need to be off. If you anticipate a situation that requires your immediate attention, put your phone to vibrate.

X. ACADEMIC HONESTY POLICY:
Murray State University takes seriously its moral and educational obligation to maintain high standards of academic honesty and ethical behavior. Instructors are expected to evaluate students’ academic achievements accurately, as well as ascertain that work submitted by students is authentic and the result of their own efforts, and consistent with established academic standards. Students are obligated to respect and abide by the basic standards of personal and professional integrity.

Violations of Academic Honesty include:
- Cheating - Intentionally using or attempting to use unauthorized information such as books, notes, study aids, or other electronic, online, or digital devices in any academic exercise; as well as unauthorized communication of information by any means to or from others during any academic exercise.
- Fabrication and Falsification - Intentional alteration or invention of any information or citation in an academic exercise. Falsification involves changing information whereas fabrication involves inventing or counterfeiting information.
- Multiple Submission - The submission of substantial portions of the same academic work, including oral reports, for credit more than once without authorization from the instructor.
- Plagiarism - Intentionally or knowingly representing the words, ideas, creative work, or data of someone else as one’s own in any academic exercise, without due and proper acknowledgement.

Instructors should outline their expectations that may go beyond the scope of this policy at the beginning of each course and identify such expectations and restrictions in the course syllabus. When an instructor receives evidence, either directly or indirectly, of academic dishonesty, he or she should investigate the instance. The faculty member should then take appropriate disciplinary action.

Disciplinary action may include, but is not limited to the following:
1) Requiring the student(s) to repeat the exercise or do additional related exercise(s).
2) Lowering the grade or failing the student(s) on the particular exercise(s) involved.
3) Lowering the grade or failing the student(s) in the course.

If the disciplinary action results in the awarding of a grade of E in the course, the student(s) may not drop the course.
Faculty reserve the right to invalidate any exercise or other evaluative measures if substantial evidence exists that the integrity of the exercise has been compromised. Faculty also reserve the right to document in the course syllabi further academic honesty policy elements related to the individual disciplines.

A student may appeal the decision of the faculty member with the department chair in writing within five working days. Note: If, at any point in this process, the student alleges that actions have taken place that may be in violation of the Murray State University Non-Discrimination Statement, this process must be suspended and the matter be directed to the Office of Institutional Diversity, Equity and Access. Any appeal will be forwarded to the appropriate university committee as determined by the Provost.

XI. NON-DISCRIMINATION POLICY AND STUDENTS WITH DISABILITIES:
Policy Statement
Murray State University endorses the intent of all federal and state laws created to prohibit discrimination. Murray State University does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, religion, age, veteran status, or disability in employment, admissions, or the provision of services and provides, upon request, reasonable accommodation including auxiliary aids and services necessary to afford individuals with disabilities equal access to participate in all programs and activities. For more information, contact the Executive Director of Institutional Diversity, Equity and Access, 103 Wells Hall, (270) 809-3155 (voice), (270) 809-3361 (TDD).

Students with Disabilities
Students requiring special assistance due to a disability should visit the Office of Student Disability Services immediately for assistance with accommodations. For more information, students should contact the Office of Student Disability Services, 423 Wells Hall, Murray, KY 42071. 270-809-2018 (voice) 270-809-5889(TDD).
